

Taper and Recovery Guidelines for a Half Distance Triathlon While Training for a Full Distance Triathlon

These guidelines assume that you're training for a full distance triathlon using one of our training plans and that you're racing the half distance race as a training race – i.e. a good, hard training session to practice race day and measure fitness. If a day below says “Per Plan” then just do the workout in your training plan (or ignore if you have no workout scheduled that day). Otherwise, follow the suggested taper or recovery workout. See enduranceworks.com/resources for additional resources.
